

TOP FIVE PLACES TO RETIRE

AS SEEN ON

Aug. 9, 2005

Baby boomers are soon going to be in their 60's, and that means the largest segment of the population is getting ready to retire. Real estate mogul Barbara Corcoran and her staff talked to thousands of retirees and real estate brokers to find the five best places to retire based on different kinds of lifestyles. Here are her findings, plus the average home price:

- 1. Astoria, Ore. Best place for people who want some peace and quiet. The average home costs $156,000.
- 2. Sparks, Nev. Best place for physically active adventure seekers. The average home costs $250,000.
- 3. Amelia Island, Fla. Best place for beach lovers and nature lovers. The average home costs $360,000.
- 4. Yaletown (Vancouver), Canada. Best place for the young at heart. The average home costs $500,000.
- 5. Ann Arbor, Mich. Best place for retirees looking for culture. The average home costs $340,000.
