The Lincoln Building is a skyscraper in midtown Manhattan that was completed in 1930. It stands near Grand Central Terminal and is within sight of such icons as the Chrysler Building and the MetLife building. The building was not the only thing to be named after Abraham Lincoln, the 16th president of the U.S., as the name Lincoln has always struck a chord with Americans. In 1917, an automobile company was founded with the name Lincoln Automobiles. Since their creation, Lincolns have been a marque synonymous with automotive luxury.
